Multi-language website for precision induction heating solutions

(Cheltenham, UK) The Ambrell group of companies launched a new multi-language web site for precision induction heating solutions. The new site, www.ambrell.com features innovative products, application white papers, solutions, videos and news. From the home page visitors choose content in English, French, Spanish, Italian German, or Dutch.

“Ambrell resources located throughout the world conduct business in the local languages of our customer base on a daily basis. This new website reinforces this capability and provides the best possible interaction from the moment we are found on the internet,” states Vernon Perkins, Director of Business Development.

The Ambrell group of companies manufactures induction heating systems for manufacturing and research applications. Induction heating provides a quick, clean and efficient source of heat without loud noises, harmful emissions or gaseous exhaust. Ambrell provides complimentary feasibility testing and system recommendation through its worldwide application laboratories.
